

Join Mark Carwardine on two fabulous new trips to the GREAT BEAR RAINFOREST

2-12 September & 10-20 September 2020

The Great Bear Rainforest is a breathtaking wilderness of ancient trees, fern-clad canyons, glacial waterfalls, streams, inlets and bays that stretches seamlessly from the northern end of Vancouver Island all the way to southeast Alaska. It is the largest remaining tract of intact temperate rainforest left in the world and is home to whales, bears and a host of other wonderful North American wildlife. Here is a fabulous opportunity to join Mark's exclusive boat charters to explore one of the greatest and most wildlife-rich wildernesses on Earth.

About our trip

Mark's private yacht charter journeys through the wonderful maze of rainforest channels in search of whales and bears – from bubble-netting humpback whales, killer whales and fin whales, to grizzly bears, black bears and elusive spirit bears (rare and charismatic black bears with white coats). We will visit a special hotspot for spirit bears and will be there at the best time of year to see them emerge from the forest to feast on spawning salmon. We also hope to see a wide variety of other wildlife: coastal wolves, bald eagles, Pacific white-sided dolphins, Dall's porpoises, Steller sea lions and American martens, to name but a few.

We will have the freedom to explore this richly biodiverse region in a small group without having to return to a base camp each evening (there will be just 12 passengers plus Mark, and an experienced crew).

The itinerary is very flexible to take advantage of wildlife sightings and tides, but the aim is to spend as much time exploring and wildlife-watching as possible. September is the best month for bubble-netting humpbacks and for seeing bears feeding on spawning salmon. Each night we will anchor in a different inlet, falling asleep to the evocative sounds of loons or even howling wolves.

The trip starts and ends in Terrace – a charming 'frontier' town where we spend the night before boarding the boat. Despite starting and ending in the same place, the region is expansive enough to explore different areas of the coast and channels without retracing our steps (unless we want to, of course!).

About our boat

The Island Odyssey – a 68-feet (21 metres) ketch – was originally built as a luxurious private yacht:

- Eight private twin cabins with port holes (double beds and single bunks).
- Three bathrooms with hot showers.
- A comfortable salon with a natural-history library.
- Plenty of deck space for wildlife viewing and photography.
- Large, inflatable Zodiacs for shore excursions and stable sea kayaks for exploring protected bays and inlets.
- Wonderful food!
